THE CHINESE REPUBLIC.

Peking had good reason to make a festival of the formal recognition of the Chinese republic by the United States, and it is well that this country took the lead among the great nations of the world in such acknowledgment of the success of the revolution which transformed China from one of the most despotic of empires into a young republic with a modern constitution guaranteeing popular government and free institutions.

No other great power stood in so favorable a position for such action.
The attitude of the United States during the troubles which the Boxer rebellion brought on China was more generous and helpful than that of any European nation and the course of this country since that crisis has been so friendly and so important to the safety and welfare of China that its value has often been publicly acknowledged by Chinese statesmen of the highest rank.

Moreover, the greatest republic ought to lead in the encouragement and support of all sane and reasonably directed movements for the spread and upbuilding of free institutions. It is the impressive example of success under such government to which lovers of freedom, the world over, turn for proof of the practical success of liberty and its power to benefit mankind.

CALIFORNIA TURBULENT.

California still insists that it has the right to make laws to govern its own people on conditions that may arise within its state boundaries regardless of what the national government may think. It is the old problem of state rights all over again. There are doubtless many persons who believe California knows conditions that exist there far better than do the rest of the country, that are never brought in touch with similar circumstances as now confront them with their Japanese problem. The same is true, perhaps, of the southern negro problem.
The residents of the northern states do not know conditions that exist in the south, yet are prone to harshly judge actions of southern states, judging them from their own standards.
This is a big country, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and many different conditions are to be found in different parts. However, it is not just and right that one state should enact laws that conflict with our national policy to the detriment of the nation as a whole. It is time to call a halt on this, and all work in harmony for a common end.

OVERTURES OF PEACE.

According to dispatches, the Cleveland Leader, owned by D. R. Hanna, who contributed $177,000 to the progressive party campaign fund, and whose newspaper was one of the staunch supporters of Roosevelt, tomorrow morning will declare with officially for a member of the republican and progressive parties, asserting that such a union has been more and more in the minds of millions of Americans as they had watched the familiar signs of danger and incompetence in the party in power in Washington.

Mr. Hanna's newspaper approves the action of the republican members of the Ohio assembly who, in secret session, after the sine die adjournment of the legislature Thursday, arranged to call a peace conference of republicans in Ohio to make proposals to the progressives for a merger of the two parties.

The action of the leader caused considerable surprise among politicians.
The editorial declares that the party in power is not representative of the beliefs and desires of the larger part of the American people and that they do not trust it to deal wisely and effectively with the tariff or currency, with banking or interstate commerce.

HAVE ORGANIZED.

The proposed Twenty-five Thousand club is now a reality. The meeting last evening at the Myers theatre saw the new organization officially launched and nine men selected to guide its interests through the preliminary steps of incorporation. It is going to be a good club for Janesville and an association of men who are interested in seeing Janesville grow.
Now is the time for everyone to put their shoulders to the wheel and boost.
There should be no drawing back, no stopping the procession, and the result will be surprising. If you have not yet united with the organization do so now. Put on the little red button of membership and boost.

NOT TOLERANT.

After years of repression, after long tedious days of being the minority,
the democratic leaders in congress can not learn the art of tolerance to their erstwhile enemies the republicans, in the present tariff contest.
The democrats have the majority in congress and they mean to hold it if possible. They will pass their net for tariff measure regardless of how it affects the country at large just to show they can. They will not listen to any arguments to the contrary and the result will be a republican congress two years from now as sure as green apples make good pies.

Now that we are to have a recall election after all, forget all past differences and turn to and place Janesville on the map as the ideal place to live in.

Secretary Lane declares that money can be handled more safely by women than by men. As he is married, it is not difficult to tell how he got his idea.

Secretary Bryan should take Tom Marshall in hand as soon as he returns to Washington and give him a few lessons in the art of being vague.

Boost boost with care, but keep on boosting. Forget that a hammer was ever used except to drive a nail with.

If the great powers put King Nicholas out of business in Europe, there is a job waiting for him in Mexico.

Providence tempts the wind to the shore, lamb, but not to the unsprinkled pavement.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

CORN.

America has contributed many things to the world, among others being tobacco, republican government, baseball, ragtime and millionaires. Some of these are doubtful blessings, but there is no doubt as to another of her contributions—corn.

The older nations have something they call corn, but compared to this young giant of ours it is a pygmy and has been.

Corn is capturing the world. Even if our flag does not float on every sea,
as bewailed by the friends of the merchant marine, our corn tassels wave in every land.

The feasts of the gods on Mount Olympus may have been some eats to put in classic phrase—but they lacked corn bread.

There are at least thirty-seven different varieties of food that can be made from corn, and they are all good.
This has no reference to the liquid form, and some people like even that.
Corn is good for man and beast.

It is the corn that made the beef trust prosperous, while the corn-fed horse hauls the loads of the world—at least all of them not hauled by the locomotive and auto truck. Yet greatest of all is the corn fed pig.

A horse may feel his oats, but his corn agrees with him so well that he never hears of his feelings that. Only a man feels his corn. No pig is intended. The corn referred to is that traded by the gold miners, not the corn, ore or old razor.

Every part of the corn crop may now be utilized, even to the pulp, inside of the stalks. The blades and tassels are good fodder, and the cobs make most satisfying Missouri meerschaums.

Corn flapjacks, with molasses, would make any one a better man even to think of, while the "corn pone" like mammy used to make down on the old plantation is guaranteed to cure the worst form of grouch.

Think as long as you like, there is not a mean thing you can say about corn. It stamps even the professional pessimist.

If somebody should write a poem about corn as good as the subject, he would take his place among the immortals.

A man who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before may be a benefactor, but a man who makes two ears of corn grow where only one grew before, is a philanthropist and has other virtues.

CASE OF MILDRED KELLY
CALLED FOR TRIAL TODAY
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Livingston, Mont., May 6.—The case of Mildred Kelly, indicted on a charge of first degree murder, was called in court today for trial. The defendant, who is also known as Helen Rosen-stein, is alleged to have shot and killed
Ed. Pratt, with whom she lived.

The two are said to have quarreled frequently and it is further alleged that the woman had often threatened to kill Pratt. The defense it is understood, will hold to the theory that the shooting was an accident.

APUR MOMENT

The Expert.
If Wilson would only just listen to me.

I'd fix him up right, you will have to agree.

I have down in my heart every last tariff bill.

If Wilson should ask me I'd write him a bill.

"Wouldn't settle conditions, I know I can't come."

Why doesn't he ask me?—I think that he should.

I know all the details from "agate"
to "inc."

I'd lay out a program as quick as a wink.

I could write and tell him, I think I can't.

Of Panama and how to run the canal.
I know how to cure all the ill-feelings which

Exists in this country between poor and rich.

I've studied the problem of corporate wealth.

I know what to do to organize public health.

I know how to corner the trust in its own field.

And knock all its hideous plans in the air.

If Wilson only would leave it to me
And sit back and rest, he would very soon see

Just how this good old Ship of State should be run.

And it would be easy for me—only fun.

His administration I'd popularize.
He'd be a great hero in this nation's eyes.

I guess you have heard of me often before.

I'm the statesman who loafs in the

OPPOSE BASEBALL PLAYING IN PARK

Seventeen of Twenty-six Owning Property Abutting Fourth Ward
Park Have Filed
Protests.

Seventeen of the twenty-six people owning property abutting on the Fourth ward park have filed petitions with the city council protesting against the giving of permission to play baseball there, requested in a petition about a week ago. Six did not care to sign either petition, and three signed the petition to permit baseball playing.

Because of the fact that a large majority of those who own property bordering on the park are opposed to baseball there, the city council will no doubt heed their request when both petitions come up for consideration this afternoon. The anti-baseball grounds of opposition are that baseball in the park would be a neighborhood nuisance and require the constant attendance of a police officer to maintain order, and because it would deprive women and children of the use of the park for which it was intended, a pleasure park.
The Council received and placed on file the reports of the city treasurer, board of education, and municipal court for the month of April. Favorable action was taken on the petitions for the oiling of Center avenue and Ravine street from Jackson to Chatham street. Superintendent of Streets Mittimore was directed to place the newly laid streets of the city in proper condition for oiling.

GRADUATION PROGRAM HAS BEEN ARRANGED

Week of June Tenth Will be Given
Over to Exercises of Senior Class.

June the tenth, eleventh and twelfth have been the dates set for the annual high school commencement exercises.
On the tenth will occur the class play "The Taming of the Shrew."

This production is meeting with favor
among the students, body as a whole, and everyone is looking forward to a good play. On the eleventh will occur the annual pageant under the auspices of the high school girls.

This will be an attractive feature of the graduation program, and the many new exercises which are being added to the program, should attract a larger crowd than was in attendance the past two performances. Miss Hill is expecting much of her time on this at-fair, and it is sure to be a pleasing attraction to the public.

Graduation night will be on the twelfth. This night the students about to graduate meet for the last time together as classmates. The diplomas will be presented and the Seniors are planning on having a very pleasing program to give.

The Junior class will aid the Seniors by decorating the auditorium as they have always done before. Last year the hall was decorated by the Junior class, now the present Senior class, and many compliments were given upon its attractiveness.

On Friday night, the thirteenth, will occur the annual banquet. This event is an annual one and it gives the graduating class a chance to meet their fellow alumni from classes which graduated many years before.

A huge crowd is expected to be together on this night, and the arrangements are now being made for making it a big success.

IOWA STATE LEGISLATURE IS STUDYING ECONOMICS

Des Moines, Ia., May 6.—Increased efficiency and a reduction in the cost of conducting the public offices, and the state of Iowa are the results aimed at by the legislative retrenchment and reform committee, which organized today to begin its work. The committee proposes to put every department of the state government on a business basis. By abolishing the committee clerk system in the legislature the committee expects to effect a saving of $25,000 a year.
Another suggestion is that thousands of dollars in printing bills may be saved by judiciously "boiling down" the legislative journals and the annual reports of the various departments.

INCREASES MAXIMUM WAGE OF TEACHERS IN CITY'S SCHOOLS

BOARD OF EDUCATION ACTION PARTIAL ACCESSION TO PETITION FILED.

FACULTY ARE ELECTED

Few Changes To Be Made In Teaching Force—New Assistant In Manual Training Is Engaged.

By increasing the maximum wage of teachers in the ward schools to $650 a year and the wage of women teachers in the high school to $900 a year, the Board of Education last night expressed its conviction that the petition of the teachers for higher pay was well founded, and its disposition to accede to their request as nearly as possible at the present time. The grade teachers had petitioned for an increase of the maximum salary from $370 to $700, and the high school teachers thought it would be better service should entitle them to $1000 a year. At the request of the Board of Education, a committee of the high school teachers last night laid before the board a report on the petition in different cities of the state which showed that Janesville is paying less for high school teachers than Wisconsin cities with equal and even lesser population.

According to the determination of the board, and the language of the teachers' petition, Teachers may be advanced until the limit is reached according to special merit shown and successful achievement. Well as the time taught. "No ward school teachers or women teachers in the high school are now receiving the new maximum salaries established, but it is probable that a number will be granted."

Sentiment of the Board of Education was practically unanimous for the increases. There was no debate over the justice of the teachers' petition, that position being confined to the extent to which their request could be met in the face of an appropriation that had not contemplated the increases, sought, and the necessity of making expensive repairs to the buildings.

Teachers Are Elected. Few changes will be made in the instructional force of the high school of the city next year according to the elections made last evening. Miss Lucy Alkin, principal of the Jefferson school will retire, and Miss Jeanette Cody, principal of the Garfield school, will be elected to her position. Miss Cody will be succeeded by Miss Rosemary Bright. Charles Hill of White water was elected Assistant Instructor in manual training, a new position and the highest school. Miss Georgia Sprague of Elkhorst will succeed Miss Martha McClure, who will cease teaching school at the end of this term. At the Adams school Miss Catherine Murphy will occupy the position now held by Miss Rosemary Bright, and Miss Mary Rustig will take the place of Miss Gertrude Callahan, resigned.

High School. Principal Superintendent of Schools, H. C. Buell, E. L. Roethli, John Arbutnot, Allen E. West, H. H. Coplan, D. D. Mangress, J. W. Curtis, Maud Munroe, Georgia Sprague, Grace Jones, Helen Vlymen, Matilda Dyrud, Caroline Gering, Gertrude Zeining, Marybelle Cornish, True Howard, Francis Hill, Miss Emily Sewell, was elected Supervisor of Music. HAVE FINE PROGRAM FOR TWILIGHT CLUB

William Lloyd Davis Will Give Lecture at Ladies' Night Meeting Next Tuesday.

Something of a literary treat is in store for those who attend the ladies' night banquet of the Twilight club which will be held at the Y. M. C. auditorium next Tuesday evening.

Mr. J. J. William Lloyd Davis of Madison of the university extension department, will give the lecture on "The Man of the Country." Mr. Davis appeared before the club last winter giving a literary lecture on Kipling, illustrated by a number of delightful readings from the poet's works, which proved a delightful entertainment.

The Reverend J. C. Hazen will be the leader of the evening and musical numbers will be given by the Baptist school orchestra of thirteen pieces, under the direction of Mrs. J. C. Nichols, and the Lakota quartet composed of Messrs. Miller, Leary, Richards and Hammarlund.

The young ladies on the house committee at the Country club have made the clubhouse a very attractive place with its bright new furnishings. The baths and lockers have been put in fine condition and after this week the chef will serve meals when ordered. The formal opening will be on Decoration day.

Division No. 6 of the Congregational church will meet with Mrs. T. G. Howe, 218 South Bluff street, on Wednesday afternoon, May 7.

COMMITTEE ON FAIR TO BE HERE FRIDAY

Nine Members Will Arrive in Janesville at 9:10 O'clock and Spend the Day Here.

Through a special message from Madison this afternoon it was learned on the authority of D. D. Conway, Secretary of the legislative committee on selection of a site for the state fair, that nine of the members of the committee will arrive in Janesville at 9:10 o'clock Friday morning and will spend the day in the city. They will go from Janesville to Milwaukee. Elaborate preparations are being made for their entertainment here.

Child's Constancy. If only we realized it, if only we cultivated it more, we could see with clear-eyed vision that all of a child's original nature breathes constancy. It is an essential strength of the undeveloped child's nature to be constant. Not until our own false examples have attacked the natural purity of the child does it become inconstant—unreliable.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Best to Specialize. Side tracks are a good thing, but the side tracks should all in the long run be switched on the main line. Don't dabble in too many things, don't scatter yourself on too many languages. Better be able to speak one correctly and know something worth doing.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE COST.
WHEN you are inclined to envy people who have more possessions of any kind than you have, do you ever stop to think what they paid for these things?

I don't mean in money, but in other coin.
 If you will only reckon the cost of some of these things which you covet I think you will often cease to break the tenth commandment.

For instance, there was one girl in college who always had lovely clothes and lots of them. At almost every vacation she appeared in some new creation. She discarded her clothes as soon as they lost their freshness and style; she bought a handsome new suit every winter and summer, an extravagance quite unknown in our poverty-stricken community, where some hard-worked suits spent three and even the full four years at college.

Often I used to feel very envious of this girl's pretty things, and then I remembered the cost and forebore. Her father was one of those nervous, harried business men, whose lives are one miserable struggle to make enough money to satisfy an extravagant family. Shortly after his daughter graduated, the eternal struggle proved too much for him and he died, an old man at fifty. That was the cost. I wouldn't want to pay it for the prettiest gowns that were ever made.

Would you?

Again, I was once tempted to envy a young woman whose linen chest and trousseau were full of the loveliest hand-embroidered things the stars of women ever had. Every scrap of linen was marked with beautifully embroidered initials; her sheets and pillow cases and towels were all hem-stitched; her lingerie was loaded with exquisite embroidery in the finest and daintiest patterns. But when I heard that the cost of that outfit and of the elaborate wedding that followed was a long, nervous illness for her mother, I envied her no more.

Yet again, I used to envy another woman her ability to get up a quantity of pretty clothes for a surprisingly small sum. But when I found that she did it by driving the dressmaker at a nerve-breaking speed, and beating down the seamstress to a starvation wage, I thought that I would rather have less after all.

Happiness does not lie in possessions for which one pays prices. It is really quite simple to be happy with the things that one can buy without paying such an outlandish price. If one would only get in the habit of thinking so.

One should always be sure to reckon the cost in other coin of all the pleasures and luxuries one craves as well as the price in money.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young mother and my baby was a year old the seventh of February. Would it be wise to wean him now? (2) He weighs twenty pounds and is a nice big boy. He can't walk, is he slow? (3) I weigh one hundred and thirty, am nineteen years old. Am I too fat? (4) What should a baby eat in his second summer?

CONSTANT READER:

(1) No. (2) He is a little too heavy to walk now. Let him crawl and kick all he wants to. It will make him strong. (3) It depends upon how tall you are, but that seems a fair weight. (4) Any kind of the prepared baby foods are good. Give him milk, crackers, a little cereal, mashed potato, baked apples, orange juice.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a young man desires the company of a lady, is it best, as a rule, to ask for her company the following week, after calling the first time, or to refrain from calling for about two weeks? As a rule, does a girl think less of a fellow when he manifests himself to be over-anxious for her company? (2) How long should a young man wait with a lady before he would be proper to kiss her? (3) Do good young ladies like nonsense or common sense talk best from a young man? (4) How is the best way to love a young lady? (5) Is it as a rule best to tell your lady friend how you truly feel to her?

(1) He should show himself anxious enough to let her know that he is really interested in her. If indifference doesn't really win a girl, this does not mean, however, that you should bore her by your continued presence unless you know that it is acceptable. You can invite her to accompany you to an entertainment, after the first time you call, but before asking for her steady company, better call on her a few more times. (2) He shouldn't ask to kiss her until he has asked her to be his wife. (3) Both in their proper time. (4) With all your heart. Certainly, if it is honorable.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What

GOLD DUST
 does more than clean

Gold Dust does more than wash the surface—it digs deep after germs and hidden particles of dirt and decay. It purifies and makes everything sanitariously safe. Neither dirt nor germs can live where Gold Dust has made its appearance.

Gold Dust needs little help from you; it does most of the work alone. It is a vegetable-oil soap in powdered form, to which are added cleansing and purifying ingredients.

Use Gold Dust for all cleansing purposes. It saves time, saves labor, saves backs and saves The Mop is Mightier than the Board.

Gold Dust is sold in 5c and 10c packages. The large package means greater economy.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work"

When a tablecloth is past its proper use it is still available for many purposes. The whole parts will make an excellent bread cloth and one or more tray cloths or napkins suitable for lunches and picnics, or for use particularly in the fruit season, when the best napkins often receive peach and other fruit stains that are so difficult to remove. The small pieces make the best of silver polishers, as they are so soft that they will not scratch the finest silver. All parts very badly worn may be cut into strips, two or three inches wide, joined together and rolled up to be used as bandages in case of cuts, burns, etc. Thus every scrap of linen is utilized which may otherwise find its way into the ragbag.

Easy way to wash kitchen walls that are painted overhead. Get the hot-water tank boiling, put plenty of soap or washing powder into a pail, set under water faucet, turn on hot water, close doors and windows. When the ceiling is steaming with vapor from boiling water, a well padded broom is used to wipe off the dirt. The steam will carry up the fumes of the soap and acts like a charm.

The Table.
 Delicious Asparagus—Cut asparagus into small pieces, cook in salt water until tender, drain and cover with milk, add tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon sugar and salt to suit taste; let come to a boil, add little thickening, and serve on small pieces of toasted bread.

Swiss Cabbage—Cut one small cabbage the same as you would for sauerkraut. Pour boiling water over it and stand a few minutes, then put in pan, add two tablespoons lard, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons vinegar, two tablespoons sugar. (Add more to suit taste.)

When the hard wood floors get too impossible, buy a bunch of steel wool, a package of soap powder, and get to work with a pair of old gloves. Use the wool with a paper between it and the gloved hand, hot water with lots of the soap. Scour off the wood until it looks like new, dry it and then proceed with either wax or varnish. This is not an easy piece of work, but it will well repay one for the energy expended.

When cleaning hard wood floors, use a cloth dipped in oil, rather than water. A freshly painted floor can be kept looking like new if a kerosene-dampened cloth is used to wipe it.

A little paraffin used on the kitchen range and well rubbed in will keep a steel range looking like new. This is a good treatment to give the stoves before closing the house for the summer, as it keeps the stoves from rusting.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

Women Policemen and Married Teachers.

THAT the woman's movement is going forward by leaps and bounds is shown by two questions that just now are stirring the city of New York profoundly.

One is the appointment of women policemen; the other is the request of a school-teacher for a year's leave of absence to bear and care for a child.

Imagine two such propositions being put up to the public, say, twenty-five years ago. The wildest flight of imagination cannot picture it. Or if it had been done, those doing it would have been looked upon as out of their mind or a fit subject for ridicule.

And though today to some people, such propositions are in the nature of thunder-bolts; in the main, so far as thought progressed, they are at least given serious attention.

Probably the issue that is most far-reaching in its results is the case of the married school-teacher. Women policemen are but the next step to women in the juvenile courts and other such work in which the presence of women is helpful and uplifting. But the necessary leave of absence on account of motherhood goes right to the root of many of the economic problems of the day that have to do with women.

If such a precedent is established, if justice is accorded the woman, in this war, if the party of the other part can see her side as well as its own, it will mean a tremendous clearing out of obstacles that now lie in the path of woman's economic independence. And economic independence for means a bettering of conditions for the world in general.

Many women prepare for some profession or life-work with the feeling that perhaps all the years and the labor of preparation will count for naught; for they may get married. Others go into such preparation with a certain listlessness and indifference because of this very possibility of marriage. Others refuse to take up any definite work because they prefer to look to marriage as a means of living, to put it baldly.

But if it becomes one of the acknowledged facts of the life of today that marriage need make no difference to a woman's life-work, how this would clarify things. Woman could take up with her whole heart and soul any work she wanted, knowing it would be her work as long as she wished to follow it. Being economically independent, marriage would not be entered into except for the one good reason. And many women, and among them some of those best fitted for wifehood and motherhood, would not abstain from marriage as they do now, because it means to them domestic tasks for which they have no taste and the giving up of work which is the expression of their very selves.

All this is of course familiar ground to those who have been studying the woman question. But the flinging of it into the face of the public, by this school-teacher of New York, will wake up many who have not deeply considered it, to the importance of bearing it as upon our social life. If what she requests could become an accepted fact of our social order and regularly allowed and planned for in the business regime, it would be a tremendous factor toward the improvement of our social order and the business world.

The probability is, however, her request will be refused. To the lay mind it is as yet too startling. The average mind is as unyielding to innovations as a rock. It takes much to move it. But in itself this very request is a good thing. It will set people, who have not yet thought much on this subject, to thinking. And thought is the force that eventually moves mountains.

Domestic Science DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY Mrs. Alice Mitchell Kirk

habit has grown upon housekeepers who say, "We are never without pineapple in some form or other in the house." This has such an advantage for two reasons: most people like the flavor and it has an active digestive element which is most important, especially in sore throat of a membranous nature, cold, juice sipped slowly, or in indigestion or fevers, it affords relief and is most refreshing.

Pineapple Cream.
 Materials—Pineapple juice, 2 c.; boiling water, 1-2 c.; sugar, 2-3 c.; whipped cream, 1-2 pt.; powdered gelatin, 1-2 t.; lemon juice, 2 t.; canned pineapple.

Directions—Dissolve the gelatin in the boiling water and add the sugar and juice. When cool add the whip cream and lemon juice. Wet a piece of muslin and lay in the bottom of a mold and fill with the mixture. Turn out when ready to serve on a dish.

This most delicious and valuable fruit, the pineapple, has become, none too fast, into a thing since coming the perfect, ripe fruit has become so general.

The fresh pineapples are usually reasonable in price. From ten cents a box, which assures us of an economical fruit, and the canned product we could not possibly keep house without when the fresh is not available.

There is no end to the delicious dessert of all kinds including cakes and pies, which are made from this most finely flavored fruit.

Then the juice may also be purchased bottled and used as hot lemonade when a hot drink is desired, or very cold with cracked ice or diluted with any carbonated waters. A fine flavor is given in tea by adding one or two tablespoonfuls of pineapple juice to a cup or glass of hot or iced tea.

Most people interested in good, healthful drinks are always supplied with fruit juices for their table, especially in the spring and summer. No better drink can be found.

Juice Gives Final Touch.
 A little of the juice gives just the final touch to a fruit punch or sauce for puddings which are not too sweet.

It served at the dining table, its proper place is with the opening course and never with or after cake, preserves, ices or sweets. It fills a double function at the beginning of the meal in rendering the palate more sensitive to the flavors of the second dishes to follow and in providing the stomach in advance with a positive aid to the digestion of food.

It is also very complementary to nuts of all kinds and many fruits, which make it wholesome to serve as a crink with sandwiches, and the fruit lends itself with its most likable flavor to most of the fruits for fruit salads.

I sometimes stop to think how the

A fine way to clean paint brushes is to soak them in hot vinegar, then wash in hot soap suds. The brushes will then be soft and clean.

One day after the painted walls of the kitchen had been well steamed from a boiler of water on the stove, we tried wiping the walls, and found that they cleaned very easy; henceforth we steam them, first and save much hard work in cleaning.

Mirrors are quickly and nicely cleaned by rubbing them with a cloth dampened with alcohol.

Save old pieces of outing flannel for floor cloths. Then wipe the dust well and are soft to wring when wanted for scrubbing cloths.

Muriatic acid will dissolve lime in a teakettle, but it will be wise to be sure that it is well boiled out with fresh water before using. This acid is also good to remove water stains in sink and porcelain bowls.

Before working in the garden, fill the nails with soap, then there will be no stained finger nails when the work is done.

WHY DINING CAR CHEFS PREFER KC BAKING POWDER

Those who have had cakes ruined by jarring the stove, slamming the oven door or a heavy footstep, may have wondered how the dining car chef can turn out such marvelous biscuits, hot breads and pastry when his oven is being incessantly jarred and jolted and shaken by the motion of the train.

To get pastry to raise and stay raised under these conditions, a baking powder must be used that continues to give off its leavening gas—that sustains the raise—until the dough is baked through.

Dining Car Chefs have found a baking powder exactly suited to their needs in K. C. and you will find it just as well suited to your requirements. K. C. is really a blend of two baking powders, one active as soon as moistened, the other requiring both moisture and heat to start the generation of leavening gas. No matter how moist and rich you make your cake, K. C. Baking Powder will sustain the raise until a crust is formed and all danger of falling is past.

K. C. Baking Powder is pure and healthful. It is guaranteed under all pure food laws, and is guaranteed to please you. And it is sold at a reasonable price—no baking powder should sell for more.

Van Houten's RONA DUTCH COCOA

You can make chocolate icing in an instant with Rona. No grating—it's ready. You'll like the rich, Dutch, chocolate flavor. Rona Cocoa is made in Holland and yet it costs only half as much as domestic Cocoa. It's a good thing to have on hand. Ask your grocer today. Two sizes 10c and 25c.

Try it on this recipe:
 INGREDIENTS—Three tablespoonfuls Rona Cocoa dissolved in sufficient boiling water to make thick paste; add cream or butter; beat in confectioner's sugar until right color and consistency are obtained.

BAD BREAKING OUT ON CHILD'S SCALP

Little White Lumps, Pimples Would Break and Run Matter, Itching and Burning. Hair Came Out in Bunches. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured. Also Made Hair Grow.

513 E. Second St., Muncie, Ind. — "My little girl had a bad breaking out on the scalp. It was little white lumps. The pimples would break out as large as a common pinhead and run matter. They would break and run yellow matter. She suffered nearly a year with itching and burning. It was sore and itched all the time. The matter that ran from her head was very thick. I did not comb her hair very often, her head was too sore to comb it, and when I did comb, it came out in bunches. Some nights her head itched so bad she could not sleep. "I tried several different soaps and ointments, also patent medicine, but nothing could I get to stop it. I began using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment this summer after I sent for the free samples. I used them and they did so much good. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. I washed her head with Cuticura Soap and rubbed the Cuticura Ointment in the scalp every two weeks. A week after I had washed her head three times you could not tell she ever had a breaking out on her head. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also made the hair grow beautifully. I cannot say enough for them for they cured my little girl." (Signed) Mrs. Emma Patterson, Dec. 22, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 22-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

GRANDFATHER'S WAY NO LONGER SUCCEEDS

METHOD OF LETTING CORN GROW ITSELF SUPPLANTED BY A MODERN SYSTEM.

ROBBERS OF THE SOIL

Were Those Who Farmed With the Idea of Always Taking Something Away Without Making Any Return.

Go Corn, You Know Your Business. By Noyes Raessler.

That was the old way of planting. The new way is to compel every acre to yield its utmost.

We can hardly pick up an agricultural paper that does not contain an account of some remarkable yields of corn, varying from one hundred bushels to two hundred bushels per acre and over.

First we will ask, what contributed most to the making of these high yields of corn, as recorded? Some will say, more fertilizer; some, more work; and others, first one thing and then another. But very few indeed, will say the right thing, which is—planting an acre of corn as does the average farmer, and allowing it to take care of itself, as best it can, but rather, of land yield its utmost.

"concentration of thought."

This means that the boys (for most of the high yields have been obtained by boys) have done something more than plant an acre of land to corn. In short, they have studied the subject of how to make the land produce more corn, instead of letting it make just what it will—the old way and the way too many farmers are still doing.

Just the way grandfather, fixed, fertilized and plowed his corn several decades ago, we are fixing, fertilizing and plowing our corn today. Granddad has the laugh on us too, for he did get the best of the fertility out of the land before we arrived on the scene of action. Yes, granddad and dad were robbers—soil robbers; and the only reason why we are not as great robbers as they are is because the soil hasn't much left to be robbed of.

What is not there cannot be taken away. If the bank has been drawn on till it is empty; no more need be expected from that bank unless more be put in. The same is true with our soils. They have been drawn upon upon continually until they are almost emptied of their fertility.

Crop after crop has been planted on and harvested from our land, taking away with them varying amounts of plant food, until now, and as an insufficient amount was returned to counterbalance the amount used up, our lands have become less and less productive year by year, and until recently were not in a condition to raise over an average crop. But what happened in Wisconsin? The introduction of clover as the best cow food has made a great change in the condition of our soils and the boys of today will often look back with a great deal of satisfaction to the day when their fathers turned their attention to the dairy industry and the culture of clover with it as a soil builder.

Of course there are other things that go to bring about the big yields. For instance, better preparation of land before planting, the use of better seed corn, or the improved seed corn which is now bred; and better methods of cultivation. All these things contribute their share toward increasing the yield of each acre of corn, but any or all of these things will not increase the yield by one point beyond what the land contains of the way of plant food to make corn.

To this and I advise every boy in the contest to see that every foot of the acre of ground is well fertilized. If this has been neglected, there is still time to do it. Take the manure of a cow or a horse and heap it on a few more loads. Your father won't object if you show him your mean business.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

ARCHIMEDES.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

ARCHIMEDES was a celebrated Grecian mathematician who became famous as the only person born considerably B. C. who could run up a column of figures without having to verify them on an adding machine.

There were great many people in Archimedes' time who could count up to ten after making a few false starts, but Archimedes was the only one who could walk up to the multiplication table and throw one leg across it in a familiar manner.

Archimedes was a gloomy person who had been scalped in early life by the patent dandruff.

remover, an occurrence which embittered his whole career and forced him to have his photograph taken with his hat on. Mr. Plutarch, who knew Archimedes well, says he was so bald that the Grecian housewife could not get any satisfactory foothold on him without strapping on a pair of climbing irons. On this account, Archimedes never wore a skull cap and exposed himself with the utmost fearlessness.

The most celebrated thing that Archimedes ever did was to cry "Eureka!" several times in succession after taking a bath and finding that the water would run out of the tub if he sat down in it with sufficient ardor. This was something that nobody had ever thought of before, and is directly responsible for the invention of the tiled bathroom floor and the plumbers' friend, the rubber.

that it was 1500 years before science discovered an easier way to let water out of a tub.

During the siege of Syracuse by the Romans, Archimedes invented a number of deadly weapons, including the catapult, the pea shooter and the air gun, with which he repelled the invaders until the Grecian army ran out of coffee and tobacco, upon which it surrendered since die several of these weapons are still in use in the form of the spit ball and the debates in the Congressional Record.

While Syracuse was surrendering, Archimedes was trying to decide whether 8 times 9 is 54 or 63, when he was interrupted by being stabbed with entire success by a coarse Roman private who had no interest in mathematics. It is probable that if Archimedes had lived fifteen years longer he would have solved this problem, and thus prevented thousands of people from adding up the grocery bill on their fingers.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, May 5.—August Wiberg, who left Orfordville for Texas last June, returned with his family Saturday evening and will again take up his residence here.

THOROUGH SPRAYING KILLS PLUM GOUGER

Prof. West Explains Damage Done by Another Insect Which Works on Plum Blossoms.

The Plum Gouger is closely related to the Plum Curculio but its injuries are even more severe than that of the Curculio.

The Plum Gouger is also a snout beetle but is larger than the Curculio and a lighter brown.

It spends the winter in the adult stage and in the spring is ready to eat the foliage of the plum and to cut a circular hole in the bud and eat the ovule which would otherwise be the fruit. The flower then withers and dies.

The adult female often cuts a hole through the skin of the newly-set plum and deposits her egg. When the larva hatches it begins to burrow towards the pit. When the pit is reached it eats its way into the interior and feeds on the seed until it is full grown. Before it pupates it cuts a circular hole in the pit for the mature beetle to go out at.

Many more injurious insects are made than necessary. These later exude a sort of gum which makes the fruit unsalable. The fruit that is injured remains on the tree but ripens a little before the un injured.

Plum trees should be sprayed as soon as the petals fall and again in ten days. Use Bordeaux mixture with a level teaspoonful of Paris green to each half full or three teaspoonfuls of lead arsenate. Spray thoroughly all parts of the tree with a mist like spray.

Spray in the morning while others sleep.

And now shall have plums both to sell and to keep.

Two Generations Now Using It

Nation's Most Popular Laxative—Keeping Millions of American Families in Good Health.

There must be genuine merit to an article that has stood the test of two generations of users.

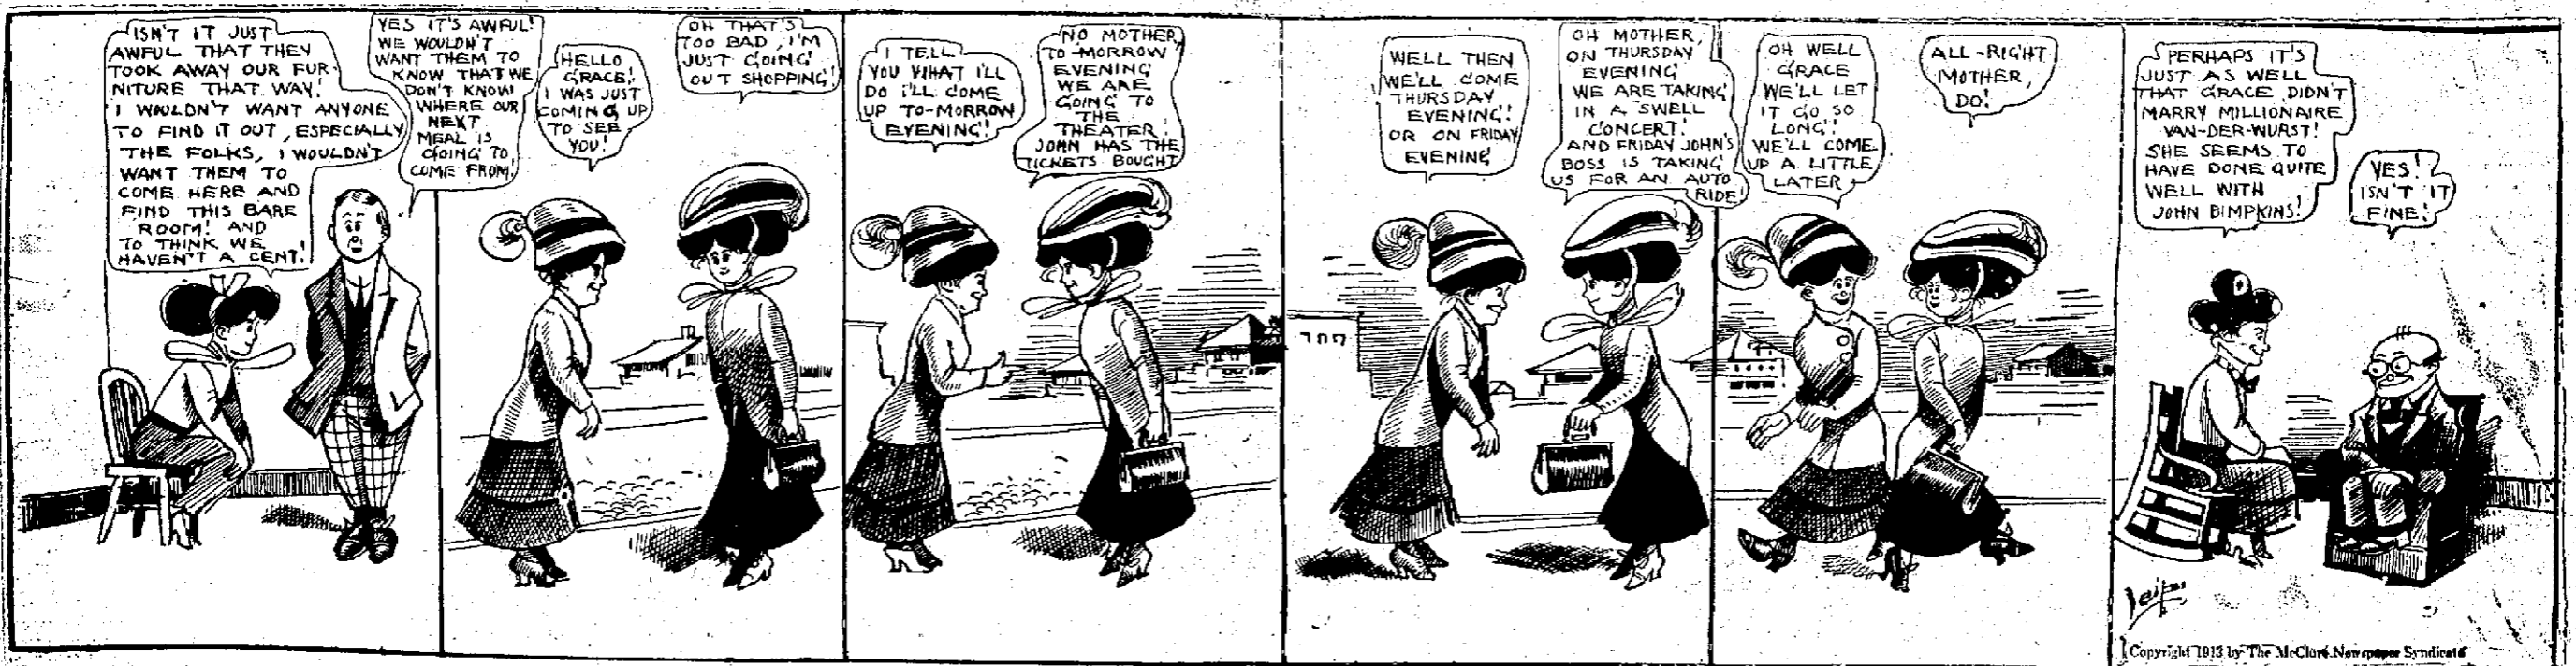

In the field of medicine, none has had greater success, nor retained that success to a greater degree, than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is now being used by two generations of people. Its use in families is constantly becoming more general. The reason, primarily, is that it has merit. It is what it represents itself to be, a laxative- tonic; it does not make exaggerated claims nor use coarse language to set forth its virtues.

It is a medicine, but so mild and gentle a medicine that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet, in a slightly larger dose, it is equally effective for grown-ups. It is for any disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels, for constipation no matter how chronic, for dyspepsia no matter how severe, for biliousness, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, headaches, drowsiness after eating, and similar complaints arising from a clogged-up condition of the bowels. It is pleasant to the taste and does not gripe. It can be used with safety and good results by anyone at any age or in any condition of health, and that person's health will improve. Every druggist sells it and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Thousands of families throughout the country are never without it in the house, among them Mrs. Clara Lewis, Becks' Store, Ky., who gave it to her baby, Elsie, while teething, and says: "It is the best medicine in the world for the stomach and bowels." She writes that she keeps it in the house for every member of the family, takes it herself and that her mother recovered her health and gained in flesh by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it, before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your

THE PURCHASE PRICE;

OR, THE CAUSE OF COMPROMISE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1910, by Emerson Hough

"My dear lady," he began in a deep and melodious voice. "I come to you doubly handicapped, both as intruder and eavesdropper. I could not avoid hearing what you have said, and as listeners hear no good of themselves I venture to interrupt. I am anxious that your first impression of me should be a good one, madam."

She dropped him a courtesy which was grace itself, her dark eyes looking straight into his face. Surprise brought a slightly heightened color to her cheek.

"You were saying it was a mistake, dear lady. But if so the intrusion was on my part. I have wished to meet you quietly, if such may be your pleasure. I am alone. Opportunity has lacked for earlier announcement, for I have but reached town this evening."

The Countess St. Auban hesitated for an instant, but guessed some errand here worth knowing. Having herself entered the inner room, with grace she signified that the elderly gentleman should first be placed.

"Madam," he went on, "my dear countess, I could but overhear you, refer to my own name. If it has any reputation in your eyes let that plead as my excuse for intruding in this manner. Believe me, nothing would induce me to take such a step except business of importance."

"It is, then, of business?" Her voice, as he noted once more, was clear and full, her enunciation without provincial slur, clean and high bred.

"Let me hasten to make all plain. I am aware of a part of your history and of a part of your plans, madam. I am not unaware of certain ambitions of your own. I am forced to be so frank in these conditions. You are interested in the cause of Hungary."

"Place it wider, sir," she said. "In humanity."

"Hence you have come to America to carry forward certain of your plans. Even now you have undertaken the greatest and most daring work of altruism: this country ever knew. And you had all things at a deadlock in Washington today. Humanity is placed away in line on the shelf in America today. Duty must not filter through the protection of this mighty compromise which our two great parties have accomplished. We must not talk of principles, must not stir sedition at this time. Whig and Democrat must tip toe, both of them, nor wake this sleeping dog of slavery."

"Are you for freedom, sir?" she asked slowly. "Are you for humanity?"

"Madam, as I hope reward, I am! Those of us who dare say so much are few in numbers today. We are so few, my dear lady, that we belong together. We are so few that I, a stranger to you, though not, I trust, wholly unrecommended, dare come to you tonight."

"With what purpose, then, sir?"

"With the immediate purpose of learning at first hand the truth of the revolutionary system in Europe. I have not been abroad of late—indeed, not for some years. But I know that our diplomacy is all a tangle. The reports are at variance, and we get them colored by partisan politics. This slavery agitation is simply a political game. Yet all the time I know, as you know, of the hundreds of thousands of men who are leaving Europe to come to this country. A wave of moral change is bound to sweep across the north. Madam, we dwell on the eve of revolution here in America as well as in Europe. Now do you see why I have come to you tonight? Have we not much in common?"

"I am glad," she said simply. "I am proud. Me you overrate, but my wishes and my hopes you do not overrate. Only—and she hesitated—"why tonight? why in this particular way?"

"I arrive at that. My own plans take me soon to Europe. I am determined to investigate upon the very ground itself this question of a national repression of the human conscience."

"She sat a trifle more erect, a trifle more haughty. He seemed to read her thoughts."

"Let me hope that you have planned an early return. We have much which we might discuss of common interest. There is much of interest in that country beyond, which we might see. I do not venture any suggestion for you, but only say that if it were within your own desires to travel in the company of a man whose former station at least ought to render your reputation safe, you and your servants will be welcome in my company. My party will have other gentlemen and ladies, not of mean station, I hope."

She looked at him, hesitating, studying. It was hardly a fair contest.

"I am somewhat helpless, sir," she said at length. "Do converse with one so able as yourself—what woman of my ambitious would not be pleased with that? But I am a woman, and alone in the world. I am already denounced as careless. There already has been talk. Moreover, as you see, I am committed now fully to this great work of freeing and tending from America the negro slaves."

"Yes. But you are here somewhat mysteriously; you came privately and secretly. What harm, then, if you return as privately and secretly as you have come to Washington? Let your agents, carry on your work here. The mission on which I shall be engaged will have to do with Louis Kossuth. Consider of what aid you might be to me. You speak his tongue, you know his history, you could supply me at once with information—Come, 'tis no idle errand. And the tongue of gossip was the least, when the eye of Kossuth has seen least. This is a most natural and proper—indeed, most convincing opportunity."

"That is precisely what I pondered, sir," she nodded gravely.

CHAPTER XVI.

Failure.

THE gentleman from New York had risen, and unconsciously the young woman also had risen—balancing, measuring, watching, warding in this contest, all too unequal. Suddenly, with a swift and most charming smile she approached him a last step.

"Did you ever hear of Mr. John Parish, sir?" she demanded.

The suave countenance before her was at first blank, then curious, then intent. His mind was striving to summon up from its many images this one which was required. It was a brain which rarely forgot, even though years had passed, and had it been able to forget, so much had been the better for the plans of the gentleman from Kentucky and for the success of his proposed European mission.

At last slowly a faint flush passed over the face she was regarding so intently. "Yes, I remember him very well," he replied. "He has not for very many years been in this country. He died abroad some years since. I presume you mean Mr. Parish of New York. He is the only one I recall of that name at least. Yes, I knew such a man."

"That was very long ago?"

"It was when I was much younger, my dear countess."

"And you'll tell me, then—tell me, was it true that once, as a wild rumor had it, a rumor that I have heard—that once you two played at cards?"

"Was that a crime?" he smiled.

"But with him, at cards with him. Mr. John Parish, a certain game of cards with him—one day—a certain winter day years ago, when you both were younger—when the trials were snowbound in the north? And you played then for what? What were the stakes then in that particular game with Mr. John Parish? Do you chance to recall?"

"Madam, you credit me with frankness. I will not claim even so much. But since you have heard a rumor that died out long years ago, which was denied, which even now I might better deny; since, in fact, you know the truth why should I deny the truth?"

"Then you two played a game at cards for a woman? And Mr. Parish won? Was it not true?"

A new and different expression passed over the face of the gentleman before her. "Why do you ask me this?" he demanded at last. "What has that to do with us? That was long ago."

"I will tell you why. That happened once in my own experience. I also had the distinguished honor to be the stake in some such game and that because—indirectly—because I had won the enemy, the suspicious at least—well, we will say, of persons high in authority in this land."

"What can you mean? Surely you do not mean actually to say that you yourself ever have figured in such an incident?"

She made no answer to him save to look straight into his eyes, chin held in hand, her long white arm lying out motionless, her posture free of nervous strain or unrest. Slowly her lips parted, showing her fine white teeth in a half smile. Her eyes smiled also with wisdom in their look.

The venerable statesman opposed to her all at once felt his resources going. He knew that his quest was over, that this young woman was after all able to fend for herself.

"What would you do?" she demanded of him. "If you were a woman and knew you were merely coveted in general, as a woman, and that you had been just cheaply played for in a game of cards in a public place—what would you do, if you could, to the man who lost—or the man who won? Would you be delivered over? That woman, was she—but she could not help herself; she had no place to turn, poor girl! And she paid all her life, then, for some act earlier, which left her fair game? Was that it?"

"But you, my dear girl! It is impossible!"

"I was more fortunate, that is all. Would you blame me if I dreaded the memory of such an incident; if I felt a certain shrinking from one who ever figured in such an incident? If I could trust—but then, and then—Are you very sure that Mr. Parish loved that woman?"

"I am sure of it," answered the old man, soberly.

"Did he use her well?"

"All her life. He gave her everything."

"Oh, that is nothing! Did he give her—after he had learned, maybe, that she was not what he had thought—did he give her then, love, belief, trust? Did he—were you very sure that any man in such case, after such an incident, could have loved, really loved, the woman whom he held in that way?"

"I not only believe that he might, my dear girl, but I know that in this one case, the only one of my experience—he smiled—"such was the truth. There was some untold reason why they two did not, or could not, marry."

"Was he—did he have anybody else in the world who?"

"Oh, only a wife, I believe, that was all."

"Did she die soon? Was there ever?"

"How you question! What do you plan for yourself? My word, you are putting me through a strange initiation on our first acquaintance, my dear girl."

"Again I want to say—I arose at 4:30 this morning. Did you? Try it tomorrow. If you cannot wake up at that hour rely on 'Big Ben' to call you."

"Get up! Go out on the back porch with your hair in a braid down your back. Be a kiddie for a while. 'Make Believe.' Just sit there and look at the sky and listen to the birds sing. Tell yourself that you are glad indeed to be alive, that as far as you are concerned there isn't any trouble in the world, that all this day you'll be a disciple of 'Sunny Jim.' You'll be blind to the petty annoyances that are bound to hedge the path of us all, no matter where our path may lie."

Say to yourself that today, for all day, shall go down in your life's history as a useful, happy, care-free day. And remember that the sun will shine and the birds will sing when

"Did she die soon? Was there ever?"

Try "GETS-IT," the Painless New Plan Corn Cure. See Your Corns Vanish in a Hurry.

"Where! Hurts way to my heart. I've tried almost everything for corns!"

"Cornucure, corns, say is at hand! 'GETS-IT' is the only real enemy any corn has."

"I am sure of it," answered the old man, soberly.

you and I have lain for years dead, that today is our day, let us make the most of it.

What are you going to do today? After John has kissed you good-bye and gone to his work, and you've sent the "Wave Ones" that are in school off with the admonition "good-bye, be good, and don't let any one get ahead of you! Win!"

Going to make some gowns for little Jean? If you've not yet purchased your material get some of the new fabric known as "Ripplette." It's advertised in all the women's magazines, as retailing at 15 cents per yard, and they lay great stress on the fact that it requires no ironing. This is true. I've made several little gowns of it. It's really very desirable, this "Ripplette." It is what you and I used to call "Seersucker" in the days when the dearest woman in the world made little gowns for us the days when we trudged up the hill to the old High School building proudly conscious of the fact that we were the envy of all the other little girls, on account of our new "Seersucker."

To get back to little Jean's gown, make it on No. 7365 of the Ladies' Home Journal patterns, it is simplicity itself and requires so very little time to make. This little pattern is ideal for the busy mother as one can pattern different little gowns from it at a very small outlay of time and money.

It's The Large Circulation of The Gazette That Makes It So Valuable.

It is a fact known to all students and users of this form of advertising, that it is the large circulation that brings results. Many of the things advertised on the Classified page are articles that must have one particular person as a buyer. Many things advertised means that many particular people must be reached and this is impossible with small circulation. Reaching 6000 homes in this county daily the Classified page of the Gazette offers a circulation scarcely to be equalled in another city by two dailies. Eight out of every ten homes in this county read the Gazette each day. You may be sure that the man for the certain article you have for sale, exchange or that you may wish to buy, will be noted by the readers of The Gazette if it is advertised there.
